About Talley Vineyards: Spanning four decades, Talley Vineyards is a leader in estate-grown Chardonnay and Pinot Noir from the San Luis Obispo Coast, Arroyo Grande Valley and Edna Valley AVAs. In 1982, Don and Rosemary Talley began planting wine grapes on hillside parcels of the family ranch, and in 1986 established the Talley Vineyards winery. Today, Talley Vineyards is led by their son, Brian Talley, third-generation vegetable farmer and second-generation vintner. As an ambassador for the region, Brian has played a pivotal role in elevating the Central Coast as a world-class wine region and was instrumental in establishing the San Luis Obispo Coast AVA. Rooted in a legacy of sustainability, the Talley family remains dedicated to making wines that showcase their seven estate vineyards.

Vineyards: Talley Vineyards farms 129 acres across seven estate vineyards in the Arroyo Grande Valley and Edna Valley AVAs. The region's proximity to the Pacific Ocean creates a cool, maritime climate with fog, coastal breezes, and a long growing season, ideal for producing wines with vibrant acidity, complex flavors, and age-worthy structure. Key estate vineyards include:

- Rincon Vineyard (Arroyo Grande Valley): Talley's home vineyard, planted in 1982, known for balanced, fruit-forward wines.
- Rosemary's Vineyard (Arroyo Grande Valley): The crown jewel site, named after Brian's mother, renowned for elegant, age-worthy Chardonnays and Pinot Noirs. With first plantings in 1987, it is the coolest of Talley's estate vineyard sites.
- Oliver's Vineyard (Edna Valley): Named for Brian's grandfather, and planted in 1991, Oliver's Vineyard produces Chardonnays with vibrant acidity and mineral notes.
- Stone Corral Vineyard (Edna Valley): A collaborative vineyard planted in 2001, known for its distinctive Pinot Noirs with dark fruit character.

Winemaking: In the cellar, Director of Viticulture & Winemaking Eric Johnson and his team draw inspiration from the traditions of Burgundy, while embracing a sense of innovation, including native yeast fermentations and individual fermentation and élevage of each vineyard block, with the goal of producing elegant, expressive and energetic Chardonnays and Pinot Noirs that showcase the unique character of their estate vineyards.
